THE recent sale of seats in Henry Ward Beecher's Church which netted $57,000, affords a text to the Cleveland Herald for some remarks, among which is the following savoring aphorism:

"There is one kind of church which is the house of God, and another which is Rev. So-and-so's house."

THE Pittsburgh Post evidently has no reverence for those in authority. After publishing two or three columns of the Governor's message, it remarks:

We present to our readers this morning, a synopsis of Governor Geary's Message, after eliminating therefrom five or six columns of useless verbiage. The document, at best, is but a proxy affair, and if published as a whole would not pay for the space that it would occupy.

A DISPATCH this morning announces that Dr. Livingstone is alive and safe, having arrived at Mozambique, where he was waiting for a vessel to take him to England. This is a little different from the news that we have been hearing in relation to him, and puts at rest the numerous stories of his death. Dr. Livingstone has been absent upon this journey at least three, and we think probably four, years, and has traversed in that time the entire African continent.

THE Internal Revenue Bureau furnishes the following interesting statistics in reference to the distilleries in the country, their capacity and product: There are registered in the country 696 grain distilleries having a capacity for using 196,238 bushels of grain per day, yielding 670,984 gallons of spirits. There are twelve molasses distilleries with a consumption capacity of 25,345 gallons of molasses daily, yielding 23,023 gallons of spirits. The quantity of foreign and domestic spirits in bond, November 15, 1870, was 9,018,024 gallons, and the quantity out of bond, as per reports of Assessors, on the same day, was 36,584,539 gallons; making the total quantity of distilled spirits in the United States November 15, 1870, 45,602,564 gallons.

If the members of the Legislature find any difficulty in deciding between the merits of the rival candidates for State Librarian, we have a way to relieve them. That is to compromise upon a new person and elect Miss Laura Ream. Miss Ream would probably make a better Librarian than any one of the persons proposed for she is fully qualified for the office in every respect, to say nothing of having no objectionable political record, as may be the case with some of them. Add to this that by such a step the members will show their recognition of the spirit of the age and still further hasten the progress of woman, and what more could be asked? If the Legislature wants to do a sensible thing, let it elect Miss Ream.

We publish the following dispatch from Washington to the Cincinnati Gazette without comment. It explains itself:

"The Missouri members who have been ignored to a great extent at departments of late, were yesterday informed by a Cabinet officer, on the floor of the House, just previously to the time agreed upon for bringing up the San Domingo resolution, that hereafter they would be recognized as in full standing and their wishes would be heeded in all matters of appointment. At the same time the hope was expressed that they would show their friendship for the administration by voting for the San Domingo resolution."

We publish a supplement to-day containing the Governor's Message. It is not customary in a paper of the size of The Evening News to attempt to furnish such lengthy documents, but we are determined to spare neither pains nor expense in providing our readers with all news of interest and importance, and not wishing to crowd out other matter have gone to the largely increased expense of publishing it as a supplement. In this connection we wish to say that no additional charge is ever made for additional matter furnished with The News. We understand that some newsboys and agents charged five cents apiece for the double sheet issued last Saturday. They had no right to do this. The price of The Evening News is two cents, and no one has any business to charge more for it. Nor will they, if we can hear of it.

THE Governor's Message, which was delivered to the Legislature yesterday afternoon, is a document of remarkable length, and seems to cover almost every point that could be of interest to the people of the State. It is written in a very fair, candid spirit, and is utterly devoid of partisan feeling, and a stranger would take it to be the utterance of a man who knew neither party nor section but had the interest of the whole State at heart. In this respect it is to be greatly commended. The indebtedness of the State and the relation it holds to the Wabash and Erie Canal bondholders are treated exhaustively, and some of our readers who are not familiar with the "canal swindle" will find a full and interesting explanation of it. The divorce laws are also carefully noticed and several changes in their construction are urged, which, if adopted, will have a tendency to relieve the State of a portion of the odium attaching to it by reason of the facility with which divorces are now procured. These are the principal topics discussed out of the ordinary range, but the whole is worth reading.

THE Toledo Blade is justly indignant at the agents of the Associated Press, who, in their desire to condense news and avoid verbiage, are creating a looseness of expression which threatens to play hob with the English language. It says:

"Not long since we were informed by telegraph that a house had been 'burgled.' Recently a dispatch stated that the members of a certain regiment out West had 'renewed,' and about the same time it was announced that a man had 'revolvered' several persons who attacked him. A Memphis dispatch given elsewhere states that a certain person was 'jailed' for an offense committed. Probably Webster's analogical method would justify these words, but where is the language to end if every news agent takes liberties with it such as are usually allowed only to such poets as Shakespeare and such lexicographers as Webster?"

This objection is well put and is worth the attention of every educated person in the country. These specimens are mild compared with some the news men and telegraphers have manufactured. The telegraph is to blame for most of the verbal monstrosities that are foisted upon the language.

Sea Ventures.

I sailed and watched my ships go out,
Each one by one, unmooring free,
What time the quiet harbor filled,
With flood tide from the sea.

The first that sailed, her name was Joy,
She spread a smooth, white shining sail,
And onward drove with hending sails,
Before the sighing gale.

Another sailed, her name was Hope,
No cargo in her hold she bore,
Thinking to find in western lands,
Of merchandise a store.

The next that sailed, her name was Love,
She showed a red flag at the mast,
As if she were a beauty, she was true,
And she sped south right fast.

The last that sailed, her name was Faith,
Slowly she took her passage forth,
Tacked and lay to at last she steered
A straight course for the north.

My gallant ships they sailed away;
Over the shimmering summer sea;
I stood and watched for many a day—
But one came back to me.

For Joy was caught by Pirate Pain;
Hope ran ashore upon a hidden reef,
And Love took fire and foundered fast,
In whelming seas of grief.

Faith came at last, storm beat and torn,
She recomended me all my loss;
For as a cargo safe she brought,
A Crown linked to a Cross.

Carl Anschutz, the well known musical conductor, died in New York last Friday, after a long illness, at the age of fifty-seven. He was born in Coblenz, Germany, and came to America in 1857, with Ullmann's Italian Opera Troupe. Previous to that time he had been a conductor of many important orchestras in Germany and Great Britain. Like his father, he was a composer of considerable ability.

Snow Flakes.

BY H. W. LONGFELLOW.

Out of the bosom of the air,
Out of the cloud-folds of her garments shaker,
Over the woodlands brown and bare,
Over the harvest fields forsaken,
Silent, and soft, and slow,
Descends the snow.

Even as our cloudy fancies take
Suddenly shape in some divine expression,
Even as the troubled heart doth make
In the white countenance confession,
The troubled sky reveals
The grief it feels.

This is the poem of the air,
Slowly in silent syllables recorded;
This is the secret of despair,
Long in the cloudy bosom hoarded,
Now whispered and revealed
To wind and field.

THE FARM.

A good farmer will never be satisfied with his farming until he is confident his land grows better every year.

To make a new rope as limber and soft as an old one, boil it two hours in water, and then thoroughly dry it in a warm room.

A farmer who runs his farm without a record of expenses and the cost of different crops, is like a ship without compass or a log book.

A Connecticut man writes to the Country Gentleman that two applications of salt water cleaned his hogs of ticks, with which they were covered in the summer.

MILDEW ON ROSES.

A correspondent of the Cottage Gardener gives the following cure for mildew on roses: Rub down in a gallon of soft water one ounce of soft soap, with the solution syringe the upper and under surface of the foliage, and the mildew will disappear as if by magic.

The Massachusetts Ploughman condemns the plan of dumping manure in little heaps, when hauled out in the fall, for top dressing. It says if the manure is allowed to lie during the winter, it will lose much of its value, and says it ought to be spread in the fall. If not done already, it thinks advantage should be taken of the first thaw.

According to a German author, the chick, at the moment of escape from the egg, weighs two-thirds as much as the original egg. If, therefore, it is desirable to have large and strong chicks it is necessary to see that the heaviest eggs are hatched. The average weight of hens' eggs may be estimated at about ten to the pound; some weigh considerably more, and others much less than this proportion. By pains in selecting large eggs, it will be possible, according to the usual theory of selection for breeding, to secure a race of chickens of large size.

BLANKETING HORSES.

Now that the cold weather has at last come, we begin to button our coats about us, and let us not neglect our horses. If our shoulders, neck, chest, and back are protected, we can stand an extreme degree of cold. Our lungs need protection, and so do those of a horse. It is not enough to throw a blanket on a horse's rump. His neck, withers, and shoulders need protection, and should have it. Protect your horse's lungs, button his blanket snugly in front of him, as we do our coats, and it will serve to protect him from the driving storm.

OLD AND NEW PEACES FOR RAISING FOWLS.

During 1869, I raised about 150 fowls on an old place where fowls had been raised more or less for years. The consequence was, I lost at least one-third of all hatched by the deadly dreads. I tried nearly all the remedies recommended, but my only success was in removing the worms with a feather trimmed for the purpose. This year I am on a new place, where no fowls were ever kept. I set my first hen on the 25th of January; I have now about 140 chicks out, some one-third grown, and not a single case of gaper or other sickness yet; treatment the same in both years.—[Poultry Bulletin.]

The horticulturist forces his crops to advantage; the agriculturist forces his by highly manuring, and careful cultivation, and those who develop the finest produce make the most money and are most thought of. The latter, when raising stock on his splendid drop of hay, corn and grain, seems to forget there is any analogy between the raising of that magnificent crop, and the raising of superlative animals, but so sure as heavy manuring, an early and good start, with attention in preventing any adverse influence interfering with the growth, etc., such as weeds or large stones and such like checks, will force a large crop, so it is equally certain that liberal feeding, an early birth, with care to prevent any check in the growth, such as allowing older and stronger animals to drive about or among the young, will force to maturity a beautiful and valuable animal.

Nature says. As an instance of the rapidity with which introduced plants spread, when soil and climate are congenial to their habits, we may point to the Euphorbia prostrata, a little animal weed in Jamaica and Trinidad, which became introduced by chance about ten years since into a garden in Madeira, situated some 400 feet above the sea. From this spot it has rapidly spread down the steep road to the town; while up the other hills, separated by deep ravines from that down which it came, it has scarcely crawled at all, a downward course apparently being far easier for it than an upward one. It has now, ever, slowly crept up another hill, at the rate of about ten feet a year. The seeds are well adapted for sticking to the clothes of travelers, to be carried about, so that we might well expect the plant to creep up in all directions. It is to be found everywhere in Madeira below five hundred feet.

PROFIT OF TIMBER CULTURE.

Western men are at last convinced that there is more profitable use for their extra land than to put it out in timber trees. It takes from ten to twenty years to bring up a grove to a paying income, yet the profits are almost fabulous. An enterprising settler in Nebraska, counting carefully on the future, says he about to plant 100 acres in walnuts. "What will they be worth in twenty years?" Each acre will have at least 650 trees, making 65,000 in all. For lumber, ties, fence posts, or fuel, $3 per tree may certainly be called a very small figure, which will give nearly $200,000. Can anything be planted on that same land which will pay as large a return? All the labor required is breaking up the land and planting. What is said of the walnut is equally true of the pine, which in fifty years will be 100 feet high and three feet in diameter.—[Independent.]

TO TRAIN A HORSE TO STAND.

Take your horse on the barn floor and throw a strap over his back and fasten it to his right fore foot; lead him along and say "whoa," at the same time pull down the strap, which draws him on three feet and makes him stop suddenly. This is the best way known to teach whoa, though you can put on the war bridle, and say whoa, and give him a sharp jerk that will stop him about as soon as the strap to his foot. Then put him in harness, with the foot strap, and drive him up the door. The moment he undertakes to move, take his foot and say whoa. Get in your carriage and get out again; rattle the thills, make all the noise getting in and out you can; give him to understand, by snatching his foot each time he moves, that he must stand until you tell him to go; and after a few times you can put the whole family into the carriage and he won't stir out of his tracks.—[American Stock Journal.]

CORN LEAF FODDER.

It has long been the habit in the South, where hay is scarce and poorer than here, to rely largely on cured corn leaves for wintering all kinds of stock. These leaves are stripped from the corn, the stalks being left in the field till winter. The Arkansas Farmer tells how it should be done: "As soon as the corn is ripe, begin to strip the blades. Do not put the fodder on the ground, leaving it until evening to bind. The method of tying in small bundles as it is stripped, and hanging on the stocks to dry, is best. When about three-fourths dried, gather and throw in good sized close heaps, late in the evening, and let them undergo a heating process during the night; next day throw open the heaps—the heats will dissipate the remaining moisture, cure the fodder sooner, and give it at the same time, a tenderness and flavor much relished by the stock. Spare no pains to cure it well—it is moldy and dusty, it may prove more than worthless."

Referring to the "Horn Ail" in cattle, the "Journal of the Farm" says: Frequently cows are sick, having cold horns and ears, and eat very sparingly of food. The diseases producing this effect are mostly all called hollow horn, and with many farmers, the remedy is boring holes in the horns, which is doubtful utility. I am applications bound round the horns and head will be much better than boring the horns, or sawing them off, as has been done by many farmers in such cases. With cows thus affected, gentle treatment is decidedly the best, and the painful process of boring the cow's horns, does more harm than good. The strong vinegar and turpentine ointment, if heet them together, add a half pint of salt and black pepper, and rub the cow's head well around the roots of the horns as hot as it can be borne with the hand. Then bind the horns around with strips of woolen cloth. For sick cows give a bran mash, in which put a table spoonful of powder, night and morning. The ingredient of the powder is two parts gun powder, one of sulphur, one of alum.

DIVERSIFICATION OF FARMING INDUSTRY.

The Commissioner of Agriculture, in a recent report, recommends that the farmers of the country diversify its agriculture, as a means of correcting the irregularities now so common. There are always exceptional years, those in which some particular crop will fail to a certain extent, causing a scarcity and high prices. High prices usually stimulate over-production, and the consequence is, low prices for two or three years, when the industry is directed into a new channel, to run through a similar cycle. Take the South as an illustration. Its industry has in the main been directed into one channel—cotton. The South would be stronger, more independent, to diversify its agricultural labor. At the West there are seasons when corn is the exclusive crop; others when the same is true of wheat. Now if the farmer would be more regular, and there would not be half the opportunity for speculation that exists now. A variety of crops will equalize production year by year; if in one season one product is scarce, there will be something to take its place. Agriculture to be successful needs a discriminating judgment at the helm.—[Independent.]

HOES.

An Ohio hog grower says that the following treatment will make the biggest hog out of a pig in twelve months. Take two parts of barley, two of corn, and one of oats. Grind them together, then cook and feed cold. He says it is the cheapest food, and that any pig of good improved breed can be made to gain a pound a day until a year old.

A correspondent of the American Agriculturist dissents from the now common advice to kill pigs at eight and nine months old. He says if there is profit in keeping a pig nine months while he is making his frame, there must be more profit in keeping him a second nine months when you have nothing to do but to lay the flesh and fat on.

A hog sweats, not like a horse or a man, but through his fore legs. There is a spot on each fore leg, just below the knee, in the form of a sieve; through this the sweat passes off, and it is necessary that this be kept open. If it gets closed as it sometimes does, the hog will get sick. To cure him, simply open the pores. This is done by rubbing and washing with warm water.—[Rural World.]

HOW TO MAKE A FARMER POOR.

1. Not taking a good paper.
2. Keeping no account of home operations. Paying no attention to the maxim, "A stitch in time saves nine," in regard to the sowing of grain and planting of seed at the proper season.
3. Leaving the reapers, plow, cultivators, etc., uncovered from the rain and heat of the sun. More money is lost in this way than most people are willing to believe.
4. Permitting broken implements to be scattered over the farm until they are irreparable. One of the Seven Wise Men of Greece said only this to prove his sense: "The time to mend the plow is when the plow breaks."
5. Attending auction sales and purchasing all kinds of trumpery, because, in the words of the vender, the articles are "very cheap."

6. Allowing fences to remain unrepaired until strange cattle are found grazing in your fields and bruising the fruit trees.
7. Planting fruit trees with the expectation of having fruit, without giving the trees half the attention required to make them produce.

THE HOUSE.

GLAZING FOR LINEN—Add a teaspoonful of salt, and one of fine scraped white soap to a pint of starch.

RHODE ISLAND BROWN BRAD—One quart Indian meal, one pint rye flour, a small cup of molasses, one teaspoonful each of saleratus and salt; with hot water thin it enough to pour; bake three hours.

TO KEEP BLUE CALICO OR LAWN FROM FAIRING—Put an ounce of sugar of lead into a pailful of cold water; in this solution soak the material for two hours, and let it dry before being washed and ironed. All shades of blue tints may be kept from fading when washed.

TO SOTTER KID BOOTS—Melt a quarter of a pound of tallow, then pour it into a jar, and add to it the same weight of olive oil, stir, and let it stand; apply a small quantity occasionally with a piece of flannel. Should the boots be very dirty, cleanse with warm water. It will soften any leather.

RAT POISON—The following, says Sir Humphrey Davy, is a tasteless, colorless, odorless and infallible rat poison: Carbonate of baryta, two ounces; creosote, one pound; mix and set a short distance from their holes. It produces great thirst; consequently water must be set close by for death takes place immediately after drinking, not giving them time to go back to their holes. Be sure that no domestic animal get at it, for it is a most deadly poison. Perhaps this remedy may be an important suggestion to hunters and trappers.

As the winter months approach a good deal of labor is expended throughout New England in banking up earth about dwellings, to prevent frost from affecting vegetables and other things stored in cellars. According to the Scientific American, which is a good authority, this laborious and detrimental process—detrimental because it causes the woodwork to decay speedily—may be done away with by adopting another process fully as efficacious and neither expensive nor injurious. The following is the method pursued by one who has found it successful:

"The walls and the ceiling were pasted over with four or five thicknesses of old newspapers, a curtain of the same material being pasted over the small low windows at the top of the cellar. The papers were pasted to the joists overhead, leaving an air space between them and the floor. He reports that the papers carried his roots through last winter, though the cellar was left unbanked, and he is confident they have made the cellar frost proof. We do not counsel the special use of old newspapers for this purpose. It is just as well or better to use coarse brown paper. Whatever paper is employed, it will be necessary to sweep down the walls thoroughly, and to use a very strong size to hold the paper to the stones. It is not necessary to press the paper down into all the depressions of the wall; every air space is an additional defense against the cold."

It is a well known fact that paper is useful in keeping out cold. Many have found that a bed-spring lined with paper of medium weight is very comfortable in winter, and that a newspaper hung securely against a window, not perfectly tight, will prevent the cold air from entering. Consequently we are inclined to believe that the process named above will prove successful. At any rate, it is worthy of a trial.

THE CITY.
MINOR MENTION.

School Trustees' meeting to-night.
Benefit to Master Harris at the Metropolitan to-night.

The Builders and Manufacturers' Association has increased its capital stock from eighty to two hundred thousand dollars.

Olive Branch Lodge, No. 2, Knights of Pythias, will have a public installation of the officers recently elected, this evening.

The name of the wholesale business house of Alford, Talbott & Co., 133, 135 and 137 South Meridian street, has been changed to Moore, Patterson & Talbott.

The jewelers of the city have mutually agreed to close their establishments on and after Monday next, at six o'clock p. m. Saturdays excepted.

Messrs. Baker, Bonham and Hill and others of the Foster Opera House, organized here a few weeks ago, returned to the city yesterday. They report the company, as a company, sadly demoralized.

Preparations for the grand ball and banquet of the Typographical Union, at the Academy of Music on the 17th instant, have been completed at this early date, and the affair is to be the most brilliant of the season.

The Norwood property on North Illinois street, adjoining the Academy of Music, was purchased yesterday by Riley Hogshire for $10,000. The purchaser has already commenced preparations for the building of a four story business block, 61 by 100 feet, in the spring.

A coal oil explosion occurred last evening at the residence of a Mr. Jones, corner of McCarty and Tennessee streets, by which Mr. J., his wife and infant child were severely burned. He was filling a lamp which was in a chair, from a can, when it got overturned. A match was thoughtlessly struck by a young son of Jones' when a general explosion followed.

The Second Presbyterian Church.
The report of the chairman of the building committee of this church shows that the edifice is completed, furnished and enclosed with a permanent iron fence; the lot graded and graveled, the walks paved inside and out, and the property in perfect order.

The cost of the building is definitely stated as follows:
Whole amount of warrants drawn for construction, $97,642 07; iron fence, paving, etc., $1,076 59; architect's per centage, $3,822 10; lot, first purchase, $9,100; value of ground donated by Daniel Yandes, Sr., $5,000; furnishing chapel, $870 54; furnishing main audience room, $2,569 30; additional articles of furnishing, etc., $582 28; organ, freight on same, and setting up, $4,767 30; interest on borrowed money, etc., $3,344 78; plans not used, $175; total, $108,735 95.

There still remain some debts to be provided for, amounting to $11,745. Of this amount $4,068 15 is already provided for, leaving $7,676 85 yet to be made up.

At the Churches to-night the following will be the topics presented for special prayer: "For Christian missions; for the conversion of the world; and for the glorious appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ." Tomorrow the subject of sermons will be: "Faith, Hope and Love—essential witnesses for the truth." This closes the week of prayer.

Mr. JAMES N. KIMBALL, until recently Deputy Treasurer of State, has been appointed by the Receiver, Judge Chapman, as Treasurer of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago road, and will have his office at New Albany. Mr. Kimball will make a very efficient officer.

REV. J. L. BENNETT, of Lockport, New York, has accepted a call from the Plymouth Congregational Church, of this city.

H. BAMBREGER, Esq., received a letter all the way from Jerusalem the other day.

LOCAL ITEMS.
The people may cry wool, wool, but I tell you the place for you to buy your woolen goods, such as shawls, jeans, cassimeres, jackets, etc., is at the wool store of Whiteley & Evans, No. 72 West Washington street. Their prices are below competition. Members of the Legislature should take notice of this fact.

Go to the lounge manufactory of Wilkens & Co., No. 84 East Market street, if you want the nicest folding spring mattress, an extension or non-extension lounge, or even if you want your furniture repaired in a tip-top manner.

Medina is selling pure hair switches, curls, chignons, etc., at extraordinary low prices, corsets and hoopskirts in the same proportion. Hair jewelry, ornaments, etc., equally as cheap. The latest styles and finest goods can always be found at 24 West Washington street.

"She went tripping along with her pretty silver heels." She had purchased a pair of the new style side lace gaiters, at the boot and shoe emporium of Bronson & Jones, No. 17 West Washington street. See them ladies.

Visitors to the city should not fail to visit Judkins' Art Chambers, 16 1/2 East Washington, and set for a Rembrandt or shadow photograph. These pictures, finished in India Ink, are the most elegant and truthful known to the art. Mr. Judkins is a first class artist of large experience and never fails to meet the highest expectations of his patrons.

If property holders will familiarize themselves with insurance facts they will find that the Home Insurance Company of Columbus, Ohio, holds a proud position among the old established companies, which has been gained by prompt and close attention to business and the claims of its patrons. Messrs. Greene & Royse are the State agents for this sterling company, and have their office in Blackford's Block.

Read what Hon. J. M. Wilson, of New Albany, Indiana, says of Perkins & House's non-explosive lamp. "I have seen it tested in every possible way to make it explode and it stood the test to the satisfaction of the large number who witnessed the trial." Sold in this city by the Holiday Bros., No. 15 South Meridian street.

If any of the members of the present Legislature should be late in to the session through their watches being out of repair, let them remedy the matter by leaving them with the practical watchmaker, Mr. J. A. Sharlin, at the new Jewelry Store of J. H. Colclazer, No. 14 East Washington street. Any one needing a new watch will find them at the same place, at prices that will induce any one to buy.

Legislators buying their cigars by the box will find the finest flavored at A. W. Sharpe's, 28 North Pennsylvania street. Mr. Sharpe is the originator and manufacturer of those well known brands, the Dauntless, Bon Ton and Huakador, which none can smoke without enjoyment. We commend the same brands to the trade generally, for such of their customers who want the best cigars the market affords.

The General Assembly are respectfully invited to call in at the Corner Drug Store this evening and lay in a full supply of the Corner cigar. They will cost you only a nickel, and are far better than most ten cent cigars. Remember the Corner Drug Store, corner Illinois and Washington streets, opposite the Bates and Palmer Houses.

The stock of sleeve buttons at Craft & Cutters' Gem Hall, 24 East Washington street, is not to be equalled in variety, richness, elegance or style outside of New York city. We will attempt no enumeration but merely ask the public to see and learn the prices, which range all the way from three dollars to three hundred. None will regret a visit, much less a purchase.

The largest jewelry house in the State of Indiana is that of W. P. Bingham & Co., No. 50 East Washington street. Gold and silver is there shown in many shapes and designs, which go to prove the great mechanism of man. Reed, the champion engraver, is ready at all times to inscribe in style unsurpassed, free of charge, any article of jewelry purchased there.

Hymn of Forbearance.
BY FITZ HUGH LUDLOW.

O living were a bitter thing,
A riddle without reason,
If each sat lonely gathering,
Within his own heart's narrow ring
The hopes and fears encumbering
The flight of earthly seasons.

Thank God, that in Life's little day,
Between our dawn and setting,
We have kind deeds to give away,
Set hearts for which our own may pray
And strength when we are wronged to stay,
Forgiving and forgiving.

Thank God for other feet that be
By ours in Life's way-faring—
Within his own heart's narrow ring,
Believing good shall be our way,
Suffering his friends' infirmity,
Enduring and forgiving.

We all are travellers, who through
A thorny road together,
Like those who have no wrong,
As I, but foot-sole, does me wrong,
I'll make excuse, the road is long,
And stormy is the weather.

What comfort will it yield the day
When light shall shine and day,
To know that once we had our way
Against a child of weaker clay,
And bought our triumph in the fray,
With purchase of his sighing?

Most like our Lord are they who bear,
Like him, long with the sinning;
The music of low suffering prayer,
Brings angels down God's golden stair,
Like those through Olivet's darkened air,
Who saw our life beginning.

THE PULPIT.
The wisdom of fairs and bazaars for religious purposes is now undergoing warm discussions in the English papers.

A field agent in Western Iowa, has been instrumental in organizing eleven Presbyterian churches during the past year.

Unity church, Chicago, (Unitarian) Rev. Robert Collier pastor, have raised one hundred and thirty thousand dollars for various objects within the last sixteen months.

The death of Rev. Charles S. Stewart, the senior Chaplain in the United States Navy, is announced. He was one of the first missionaries sent by the American Board to the Sandwich Islands, and was commissioned as Chaplain in 1828.

The United Brethren Almanac for 1871 reports 116,055 members, an increase of 9,000; 3,924 organized societies, 881 itinerant and 765 local preachers. They have four Bishops, six colleges and five seminaries. The average salaries of the preachers is $382.

The Jewish Times says the synagogues, formerly crowded three times a day by devout worshippers, are deserted even on the Sabbath days, and that many of the Jews retain but little more than the memory of their peculiar ceremonies and observances.

"Oh, sir," said a lean-hearted believer to his pastor, "I have been praying a whole year that I might enjoy the comforts of religion, and get no answer to my prayers." "Go home now, and pray, 'Father, glorify thyself,'" was the reply. "Selfish prayers contain no nutriment."

In the city of London, only half a million attend public worship, and there are a million of absentees who, if inclined to attend church, would require eight hundred new places of worship to accommodate them. There are 10,000 public houses and beer shops, frequented regularly by 50,000 persons.

The one hundredth anniversary of the ordination of Bishop White, the first bishop of the American Episcopal church, was celebrated in Philadelphia last week. Bishops Smith and McVane were consecrated by him, and eighteen men are living whom he ordained, either as priest or deacon.

The leading denominations of Michigan have the following memberships: Baptists, 18,312; Congregationalists, 11,824; Presbyterians, 11,965; Free-will Baptists, 3,784; Protestant Episcopal, 6,672; Lutheran, 3,309; United Brethren, 4,500; Roman Catholics, 150,000; Methodists, 49,635.

The Methodist Presiding Elder for the district of New Orleans, says that the hostility of the whites to Northern preachers is so great that in three rounds of quarterly meetings held over a district one hundred and thirty miles in length, he did not see three white faces at all of them.

The Church Observer says that the Presbyterian statistics show a gratifying increase of liberality from year to year. The average amount given by each communicant for benevolent purposes was in 1870, seventeen and a half cents; in 1871, one dollar and twenty-eight cents; and in 1870, four dollars and fifty-nine cents. The collections for congregational purposes averaged five dollars and two cents in 1871, and in 1869, eleven dollars and thirty-seven cents.

One of the signs of the times is the fact that a Waldensian pastor has recently preached in Rome. For centuries the Waldenses were ruthlessly persecuted by Rome, who sought to exterminate them. The Rev. Mr. Prochet, of Genoa, was the first to preach a Protestant sermon within the walls of the city after the entrance of the Italian troops. He visited the city to ascertain the addresses of members of evangelical churches, and to obtain information about the possibility of beginning religious services, and while there preached in a private room.

Rev. Rowland Hill used to ride to and from church in a carriage. This gave offense to one of his members, at least, who went so far as to hand in among the notices one requesting "the prayers of this congregation for the pastor, who, yielding to pride, is in the habit of riding in his carriage, not content, like his Divine Master, to ride upon an ass." It was not until Mr. Hill had read the paper, and observed the sensation created that he noticed its import; then, laying it down, he said: "It is true, brethren, I ride in my carriage; but if the author of this notice will appear at the door at the conclusion of the services, saddled and bridled, I will do my best to ride him home."

The agitation in the Unitarian Church during the past year has, according to the Year Book, distinctly defined the following positions: First, it adheres unswervingly to Christianity. Every attempt made, under whatever pretext, to weaken or to obscure this Christian attitude, was resisted as strongly as it would be by any sect in Christendom. Some who belong to the denomination recognize so distinctly, and welcome so gladly the working of the Spirit of God in all men, and under all forms of faith, that they find a satisfaction in holding affiliation also with religious organizations that are outside of Christianity; but even they acquiesce in the emphatic determination of the Unitarian body to be wholly inside of Christianity, and to confine its activities and its methods and its fellowship strictly to Christian limits. And, secondly, Unitarianism maintains the broadest liberty consistent with Christian limitation.

Traces are occasionally seen in the struggles of the French of curious religious parties. It seems that there still exist among the Yogues mountains the remnants of the Anabaptists of Munster. Among other things they testify against war as unchristian, and refuse under any circumstances to carry arms. Napoleon made them look after the wounded on the field of battle and attend to the wagon train and ambulances, and they continue to be sanitarily employed. The Protestants of Languedoc for the most part belong to the Protestant Church, but the independent character of the people has led them to embrace Protestantism in other forms. Thus the Evangelical Church is especially strong in the South, whilst the Methodists harbor more congregations and worshippers in Languedoc than in all the rest of France. There are also in the Cevennes several congregations of Moravian Brethren; and at Languedoc also exists a branch of the Society of Friends, the only representatives of that body in France, or, indeed, on the European continent.

Rev. F. W. Robinson says, that strength of character consists of two things—power of will and power of self restraint. It requires two things, therefore, for its existence—strong feelings and strong command over them. Now, it is here we make a great mistake, we mistake strong feelings for strong character. A man who bears all before him, before whose frown domestics tremble, and whose burst of fury make the children of the household quake, because he has his will obeyed, and his own way in all things, we call him a strong man. The truth is, that is the weak man; it is his passions that are strong; he that is mastered by them is weak. You must measure the strength of a man by the power of the feelings he subdues; not by the power of those which subdue him. And hence composure is often the highest result of strength. Do we never see a man receive a flagrant insult, and only grow a little pale, and then reply quietly? That is a man spiritually strong. Or did we never see a man in anguish stand as if carved out of solid rock, mastering himself? Or one bearing a hopeless daily trial remain silent, and never tell the world what cankered his home peace? That is strength. He who, with strong passions, remains chaste, he who, keenly sensitive, with many powers of indignation, in him, can be provoked and yet restrain himself and forgive—these are the strong men, the spiritual heroes.

Fatally Injured.—An old man named Samuel Heizer was struck by the nine o'clock passenger train on the Peru and Chicago Railroad, and is supposed, fatally injured. It seems the old man was coming into the city, and when near Massachusetts avenue had hitched his horse to a telegraph pole. On seeing the train coming he ran to unhitch the horse, when he was struck by the engine. He was brought into the city, but is probably dead by this time, as it was thought impossible to save him. He is about sixty-five years of age and an uncle of Cyrus O. Heizer, Trustee of Center Township.

CITY.—Julia Murray, a poor half-witted woman, was arrested for drunkenness, but allowed to leave the city without punishment. Henry Shinnerhaus paid $8 for being drunk, and Gorman Baton and Thomas Pierson were committed for the same offense.

In 1869 the City Council passed an ordinance making Circle street a continuance of North Meridian, and ordered the numbering of houses and lots accordingly. A violation of the ordinance was made punishable by a fine not exceeding ten dollars and cost of suit. Right in the face and eyes of this ordinance several houses are numbered as though Circle street was not a continuance of North Meridian, but a street by itself. The question should be settled, else much confusion may hereafter arise as to title of lots, etc.

SHERIFF SHANNON, of Jefferson county, arrived at about noon to-day, and had an interview with John Hale, the man arrested day before yesterday, for the supposed murder of another Hale, on the 26th of November last, in Jefferson county. Hale proved to be the wrong man, however, and was discharged from custody at once.

As extra engine of the Fire Department was yesterday employed in filling cisterns at the Poor Farm, from Eagle Creek. The farm is supplied with five large cisterns and two tanks. The engine pumped sixteen hundred barrels of water, and then only filled a portion of them.

Exchange, 110 1/4 @ 110 1/2.

Produce of all kinds has been moderately active

at our quotations.

Flour and grain have brightened up considerably and are quoted firmer and more active. Corn has advanced. A livelier trade is anticipated for the next few weeks than has been experienced for several weeks past.

Brans and shorts have advanced about one dollar per ton during the week.

Refined sugars have advanced, in spite of the late reduction in tariff, which is accounted for by the fact that refiners, in anticipation of the proposed reduction by Congress, pretty generally suspended operations in the early part of November. The suspension has made refined sugars scarcer and firmer than at any time during the last six months. Operations are about being commenced, so that within a few weeks consumers will begin to reap the benefit of the tariff reduction.

Kid Gloves.

The January number of Lippincott's Magazine contains an article on "The Industrial effects of the War," in which we find the following interesting facts in regard to the manufacture of kid gloves. This industry, although nominally located in Paris, is in reality distributed over the whole of northern France, and has given occupation to great numbers of persons in widely distant localities. The skins which form the material for the gloves are imported from Italy, Switzerland and Germany. They are tanned and dressed at Besancon, Beauvais, Luneville and numerous other places. They are then sent to Paris, where the gloves are cut from them, in every variety of pattern, and are distributed through the provinces to be sewed by women who work at their own homes. It is, therefore, very evident that with no means of communication between Paris and the provinces, the supply must cease; no more gloves can be manufactured till the gates of the Capital are thrown open. The demand for export continues the same, and therefore, the price must be increased, as we know to our sorrow.
